

Specialist Area: Education Planning

Developing strategy as well as monitoring and evaluating programmes is an arduous task for organisations in the education sector which are already endeavouring to balance resourcing and implementation issues.

Given the complex education environment in New Zealand and the critical nature of education to New Zealanders, administrators face an on-going challenge to maintain achievement - both organisational and educational - at the highest levels.

APR Consultants has been involved in a number of projects in the education sector to assist schools, school clusters and tertiary organisations build capability, enhance school performance and student achievement and develop greater understanding of community and business requirements for education in their regions.

Much of APR's work in education has focussed on facilitating strategic planning and community consultation, undertaking education research, assessing education demand and providing project coordination and support. This has been augmented by work involving cross collaborations with industry in the form of regional employment skills research and schooling improvement projects.

Projects have been located around New Zealand including Northland, Auckland, Tairāwhiti, Waikato, Hawkes Bay and the Bay of Plenty regions. Most recent APR education projects include the P.E.E.K project – an initiative developed between the Kawerau community and the Ministry of Education aimed at enhancing the education of students in the Kawerau District.

APR has also recently completed the North and West Auckland Tertiary Education Review – a project to identify the trends, strategies and constraints that will impact on tertiary education and training delivery in the North Shore City, Waitakere City and urban Rodney areas over the next ten years.
